

T U E S D A Y, JUNE 26, 1770.

SOUTH-CAROLINA.

By the Honourable WILLIAM BULL, Esquire, Lieutenant-Governor and Commander in Chief, in and over the said Province.

A PROCLAMATION.

GIVEN under my Hand, and the Great Seal of the said Province, at CHARLES-TOWN, this Thirtieth Day of JUNE, Anno Domini 1770, and in the Tenth Year of his Majesty's Reign.

WILLIAM BULL,

By his Honour's Command,
GEORGE MURRAY, pro Secretary.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

A Letter from the KING of PRUSSIA to Monsieur DE VOLTAIRE.

WE live in an age of wonders, and the end of this century foretells political miracles, and surprising revolutions. I am still at the head of 200,000 of the best disciplined soldiers in Europe. The Czarina will revive the empire of the east, buried in oblivion for many ages, and abandon the modern Petersburg to reside in the ancient Byzantium: Her fleets threaten the Archipelago, and the sons of Mahomet will avoid circumscription, by embracing the religion of the Greek Emperors, whom they subvert. The Swedes want a Charles XII. to make the kingly respect at home, and their army formidable abroad; have tried to reduce their monarchs to the ancient Kings of a; but they want the invincible legions of that republic, force the decrees of their diet; otherwise a spirited Prince conquer them, or die in the attempt. REMARKABLE ADVERTISEMENTS, &c.

A Card from St. James's.

COLONEL L---ll and the Maids of H---r in waiting were playing at pusi-pin, in one of the apartments at St. J---s's, at the time the Remonstrance was presenting; from whence it was conjectured he would not attend the business of that day in the House, as no division was expected.

A treaty of marriage is on foot, and will speedily be consummated, between Lady D---s's Romeo, and the Dutchess of G---s's Charlotte---both of King Charles's breed.

A Card from St. James's.

LADY Grosvenor is now lodged, for the benefit of her health, at a small house in Knightsbridge, a little beyond St. George's Hospital. Affes milk sold here, is inscribed over the door. This made a certain wag say the other day in passing by, "That her Ladyship was very fond of those animals and their milk."

To the Princess Dowager of Wales.

A WOMAN in politics, is like a monkey in a china shop; she can do no good, and may do a great deal of mischief.

The Queen is a pattern to her sex; the entertainers no passion for politics, because it might injure her eldest son.

We are informed, that the daily advice of a certain Lady in Pallmall to her son, not far from St. James's, is, "Be firm, George: Whatever you do, be firm."

ON Wednesday as the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor alighted from his coach at St. James's, and was going into the palace to present the Remonstrance, a man among the crowd cried out, "God bless your Lordship, never fear, if you should be sent to it. Tower you will not remain there long, I promise you."

LAST Tuesday evening a Butcher being in company at Newmarket, with the Tanner who always bought his skins, agreed to sell his wife to him at five pence halfpenny a pound, the money to be paid the Tuesday following, on her delivery. The agreement was drawn up by an eminent Attorney, and the Tanner deposited one guinea in part of payment.

IN the Dublin Journal we find the following Extract of a Letter from Corke, dated April 27, 1770.

"I must acquaint you, my dear friend, that the affair of Thunder Fitzgerald turns out a very safe Murder, but whether Thunder or the Man who killed him committed the murder, must be determined by the jury. Yesterday Mr. Swan, who is said to be a long while privately in England upon public affairs of his Excellency, was blown by contrary winds into this port: but we expect a member here every hour, who we hear has just taken leave of our new sheriff, and is gone back to England, notwithstanding a terrible fall, by which he fractured his skull, and is since much better."

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE, MARCH 1770. Genuine copy of a letter from the Earl of Hillsborough to the Hon. Major General Gage, by which it will appear with what view, and for what purposes, troops were ordered to America, and quartered in the town of Boston.

SIR,

Whitehall, June 8, 1768.

I Transmit to you for your private information, copies of a letter from his majesty's commissioners of the revenue to the lords of the treasury, of my circular letter to the several governors upon the continent, in consequence of it; and of Governor Bernard's three last letters to my office.

The contents of these papers will evince to you how necessary it is become, that such measures should be taken as will strengthen the hands of government in the province of Massachusetts-Bay, enforce a due obedience to the laws, and protect and support the civil magistrates and the officers of the crown in the execution of their duty.

For these purposes I am to signify his Majesty's pleasure that you do forthwith order one regiment, or such force as you shall think necessary, to Boston, to be quartered in that town, and to give every legal assistance to the civil magistrats in the preservation of the public peace, and to the officers of the revenue, in the execution of the laws of trade and revenue; and as this appears to be a service of a delicate nature, and possibly leading to consequences not easily foreseen, I am directed by the King to recommend to you to make choice of an officer for the command of those troops, upon whose prudence, resolution, and integrity, you can entirely rely.

The necessary measures for quartering and providing for these troops must be entirely left to your direction; but I would submit to you, whether, as troops will probably continue in that town, and a place of some strength may, in case of emergency, be of great service, it would not be advisable to take possession of, and repair, if repairs be wanting, the little castles, or fort, of William and Mary, which belong to the crown.

I am, &c.

HILLSBOROUGH.

The SPEECH of the Right Honourable the Earl of CHATHAM, in the House of LORDS.

IF I attempt to speak this day, and in this House, it is because I am impelled to speak, I feel an impulse which I cannot resist: And I should not have been easy in my own mind, if I had not stepped forth at this alarming crisis, to give my public testimony in behalf of the people of England, and to declare my free opinion of the distressed state of our affairs in every quarter of the globe.

After a peace, by which we abandoned (shamefully abandoned!) our allies, I thought, till this day, that we were again on the slippery edge of a new war,---without allies abroad, and without unanimity at home.---If we turn our eyes towards America, the prospect is equally distressful.---Much has been said of the disobedience of the colonies to the mother-country.---My opinion, with regard to America, is the same now it ever was.---My opinion is this, we ought to do justice, before we expect obedience. I feel the warmest regard for America: I love the Americans, because they love liberty! Liberty has spread, like a vine, from this country to the colonies: Liberty flourishes in the wilds of America! I honour the plant; I revere the tree; and I would cherish the branches.---As to any tumults that may have happened in America, they are the ebullitions of liberty; they are only some breakings out in the skin of the body politic, which, if rudely restrained, and improperly checked, may strike inwardly, and endanger the vitals of the constitution.

I now come to speak my sentiments with regard to the members in the House of Commons: I have the greatest honour and respect for that House;---I honour them on account of the fountain from whence they spring---the PEOPLE! But that House has encroached on the other branches of the legislature; it has usurped a legislative authority, and passed the limits pointed out by our constitution: It has chosen Col. Lutterell a member of their House, although there plainly appeared at their election, a very considerable and undoubted majority in favour of Mr. Wilkes. This is the cause of the unhappy discontents, which universally prevail; this has spread an alarm through every part of England; this is the source of those murmurs and complaints with which an injured people now surround the throne; this is the cause of those petitions to which ALL the honest freemen have set their hands!---Tis by this fatal resolution of the Lower House, that a breach has been made in the strong hold of liberty; the fortress is now open, and the enemy may enter at discretion!---The constitution, that admirable fabric, the work of ages, the masterpiece of human wisdom, is wounded in the vitals! It resembles an old decayed tottering wall; in no part of it can you sit down under the shade in safety!

During your recess in the country, no doubt your worships have read that excellent book, the age of Charles the Fifth. The celebrated historian Robertson has said (and he said well) "That the Castilians lost their liberty, by suffering one of the estates to encroach upon and usurp the privileges of the other."---Let US take warning; let US observe, with a jealous eye, the proceedings of the Lower House. I need not recal to your worships remembrance, that it is not the first time that House, the House of Commons, has voted the House of Lords useless.

Your worships, therefore, ought to withstand the very first appearance of encroachment from that House; your worships form the only branch of the legislature, that can with propriety attack the members of the House of Commons: Let us shew them we are not useless; let us shew them, that we have both the power and the will to check their proceedings, whenever they go beyond their just limits, and manifestly tend to subvert the constitution: And therefore I move (in answer to what was said by---, recommending unanimity) that this House do take into our immediate and most serious consideration, the cause of the present national discontents; and particularly that resolution of the House of Commons, by which Mr. Wilkes was rejected as a member, and Col. Lutterell was voted in his place; contrary to the sense of a great majority of legal electors, who were by that means deprived of their common right, and free choice.

L O N D O N, APRIL 19.

WE are informed that Commodore Byron will set out for his government of Newfoundland the 18th of next month, with the men of war which are to compose his squadron. The repeal of the remaining tax complained of by the Americans, will be again taken into consideration on the next meeting of an august assembly; it being partly upon those conditions that the affair was not more strongly urged at present.

It appeared the other day, upon a certain worthy Alderman's account of the injuries sustained by trade, through the not granting redress to the grievances complained of by the colonists, that among other things ten vessels had lately sailed from the Thames to the Continent, laden only with the bed of the river.

It is said, that it was discovered upon the last debates on the American affairs, that several letters from people here had been published in the American Gazettes, exhorting the people to stand out, and not to import British goods, as it was by that means alone they could think of bringing the Ministry to.

As the Americans have complained grievously of the indignity put upon them, by forcing them to receive our transported felons, it is now in contemplation, whether the male criminals would not be more usefully employed in the garrisons of Africa, and as soldiers in the East-Indies, which would render the practice of kidnapping less necessary, and prevent the migration of more useful hands.

Since the beginning of November last 32 ships have failed from Gravesend, in the East-India Company's service, which is the greatest number ever known in one season.

We hear that William Woodley, Esq; Captain General of the Leeward Islands, will soon return to England.

Ralph Payne, Esq; member for Shaftesbury, it is said will be appointed to succeed Mr. Woodley.

The different and erroneous reports in many of the papers of the time of Mr. Wilkes's release, has induced us to give the following account, which may be depended on. About three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, an extraordinary message was sent to Mr. Thomas, the Marshal of the King's Bench prison, respecting the release of Mr. Wilkes; upon which Mr. Thomas went immediately to Mr. Wilkes's apartment, and told him the orders of his release, altho' his time was not out till midnight. Mr. Wilkes thereupon immediately prepared to set out in a post-coach and four, which had brought his daughter, who was attended for that purpose by Mr. Trevanion and Mr. Churchill, and in company with these, he left the prison at 5 minutes after five, and went to Bromley in Kent.

It is said the Lord Mayor has given Mr. Wilkes an invitation to spend some weeks this summer at Fonthill.

It is rumoured that a late patriotic prisoner will soon open his Budget, to the astonishment of Englishmen, as containing matters of the most alarming nature, which that gentleman did not think proper to publish during his confinement.

APRIL 21. On Wednesday last the Earl of Chatham entertained Earl Temple, Lord Camden, John Wilkes, Esq; John Calcraft, Esq; John Trevanion, Esq; and Mr. Reynolds (Mr. Wilkes's attorney) at dinner at Hayes in Kent.

At eight o'clock this morning died Lord Sandys, of the bruises he received by being overturned in his carriage lately on Highgate-hill; his son succeeds to his title and estate; which makes a vacancy of one of the Members for the city and liberty of Westminster, and we hear Sir Robert Bernard intends to offer himself.

Yesterday Lord Camden had a conference with his Majesty at the Queen's palace; after which he visited the Earl of Chatham in Pall-Mall, where he stayed two hours.

The freeholders of Middlesex, it is said, are to assemble in Hyde-Park, to accompany John Wilkes, Esq; to the House of Commons, soon after their next meeting, when he intends to go and demand his seat as knight of the shire for that county. And so great is the spirit of the people to carry this great point, that it is expected a considerable majority of the freeholders will go on this occasion in procession.

It is said that the Minority have drawn up the heads of a bill, as an addition to the place bill, that no person who holds a place under the government, in any shape or manner, either by himself or another, shall be capable of voting for a member of parliament; and that all dignified clergymen (such as deans, canons, prebends, &c. &c.) will be included therein.

We are well informed that the reason of Mr. Wilkes's release before the expiration of his time, was in consequence of a card wrote by that gentleman a few days since to the higher powers, signifying his inclination (for the sake of peace and good order) to remain any number of hours longer than his sentence, that might be judged proper. To which he received for answer, as a compliment to his condescension, that he had liberty to leave his confinement any time in the day preceding the expiration of his term that he might approve of.

APRIL 24. Saturday his Excellency Sir Francis Bernard, Governor of Massachusetts-Bay, had a conference, for near three hours, with the Right Hon. the Earl of Hillsborough, Secretary of State for the colonies, said to be relative to some extraordinary news received from Boston.

Saturday morning the Right Hon. the Lord-Mayor had a numerous meeting of Noblemen and Gentlemen at his house in Soho-square; after which his Lordship set out on a visit to the Earl of Chatham at Hayes.

They write from Toulon, that a number of pioneers, and some of the ablest engineers in France, have been embarked for Corsica, in order to make the most of the few good harbours in that island, by deepening the channels, blowing up the rocks, &c.

Sunday an express was sent to his Grace the Duke of Argyll, at his seat in Settle.

Yesterday Earl Temple dined with the Earl of Chatham, at Hayes.

On Sunday night Mr. Wilkes came to town from Bromley, in Kent, and yesterday dined with the Antislaverys at the Assembly-room at Mile-End.

It is expected there will be a general promotion of Admirals and Major-Generals in the course of this week, a list of officers to be preferred having been laid before his Majesty for that purpose these fifteen days.

This day, at a very full Court of Aldermen, Mr. Wilkes was sworn in Alderman of the ward of Farringdon Without. The motion was assented to without a division; he was afterwards requested by the Lord Mayor to accept of a seat in his coach to the Mansion-house, and to partake of an elegant entertainment on the occasion, both which he politely accepted.

This day the House of Commons met for the further dispatch of business. The House of Peers will meet on Thursday next. A conciliating motion was intended to be made in a respectable assembly this day.

The resolutions respecting the Middlesex election, are to be reconsidered before the expiration of ten days from the present.

This day an extraordinary Board of Trade and Plantations was held, on affairs of importance.

We hear that a Council has been held upon the affairs of Boston in New-England, and that the result of the deliberation is of an extraordinary nature as the subject.

Yesterday an express was dispatched from the Admiralty-office for Portsmouth, with orders, as it is said, for fitting out four men of war for the North-American station.

It is reported that a draught of an extraordinary force is soon to be made from the Irish regiments for foreign service.

It is said that all the officers of the revenue have been obliged to leave the town of Boston, in New-England, since the unhappy affair which lately happened there.

A letter from Boston, in New-England, dated March 14, says, "You may depend, this town will never again suffer any troops to be quartered upon them. Happy for the officers, that they contented, the morning after the slaughter, to the removal of the troops to the castle, about three miles from the town by water; otherwise, I verily believe, every officer and soldier, in four-and-twenty hours, would have been sacrificed. It is supposed that in twelve hours we can raise ten thousand men completely equipped, and three times that number in forty-eight hours. The late melancholy event has induced all the inhabitants of this province to put themselves in complete order, so that they may be ready upon any emergency."

Extract of a letter from Portsmouth, April 22.

"We hear the Russian fleet have got quite out of the Channel; and it is expected they will soon be at Gibraltar, when they will be very formidable."

It is said that a short day will be appointed for the election of a burgess to serve in parliament for Westminster, and which is very proper, as it will be consequently attended with much less inconvenience to the inhabitants, and far less expence to the candidates.

It is strongly reported at the west end of the town, that Lord Lincoln, eldest son of the Duke of Newcastle, will be proposed on the day of nomination a candidate to represent the city of Westminster in parliament.

We hear a messenger was sent express on Sunday to Sir Watkyn Williams Wynne, Bart. at his seat in Wales, to solicit him to offer himself a candidate to represent the city of Westminster in Parliament, in the room of the Hon. Edwin Sandys, now Lord Sandys.

The meeting held this day in Westminster-hall was not the proper, regular, and legal one, for the nomination of candidates for the city, but only an assembly of the friends of one of the candidates; as the vacancy must be first declared in the Houses and a writ issued to the High Bailiff, who must collect the Burgesses, and then appoint a time for the nomination, within a limited space, and in due form.

St. James's, April 16. The King has been pleased to appoint Soame Jenyns, Edward Elliot, John Roberts, William Fitzherbert, Robert Spencer (commonly called Lord Robert Spencer) George Greville (commonly called Lord Greville) and William Northey, Esqrs. to be commissioners for Trade and Plantations.

PORTSMOUTH, April 17. A little before the Russian fleet were out of sight, an express arrived from London, upon what account is not publicly known, and the Seaford frigate, and the Grace cutter, are this day dispatched after them.

CADIZ, March 9. By letters from Mexico we have an account, that the Sieur Paly, the famous geographer, who was among those who fell sick at California, when the Abbe d'Aute-roche died, happily arrived on the 14th of October at Port St. Blaise, in the White Sea, with all those who had the good fortune to escape the epidemic disease with which they were visited. Much is expected from the success of the observation, which was the grand object of the voyage of those astronomers.

NAPLES, March 20. Our conjectures of an eruption of mount Vesuvius being at hand, has proved true; for on Wednesday last the mountain burst within an hundred yards of the crater, on the side of Pompeii, from whence issued a lava of about two miles in length, and 2700 paces in breadth; at the same time that volleys of stones, some not less than a ton weight, were thrown out of the crater to a very considerable height, a thousand feet or more, as we could judge by the time they took in falling. The lava has not yet reached the cultivated parts of the mountain. This eruption will probably be moderate, as we had to very violent a one two years ago.

HAGUE, April 12. Some private letters from Berlin intimate, that three persons who were employed in the King's closet, have lately been privately put to death, for betraying some secrets which their stations rendered it unavoidable to trust them with.

GENOA, March 31. Yesterday the Russian commodore, who commands a squadron in the Mediterranean, arrived in this city, to give the necessary orders for fitting out the ships that are at anchor in this port. He was received by the doge with all possible distinction.

ROME, March 31. As soon as the eruption of mount Vesuvius was known here, ten English gentlemen, who were just come from Naples, returned thither, in order to see that phenomenon. The mountain has burst in two new places, and when the last accounts came away, the lava from one of the openings had extended fifteen miles, and not less than twelve from the other.

CIVITA-VECCIA, March 24. Fourteen men of war are expected to sail very soon from the ports of Spain, and twenty from those of France, to observe the operations of the Russian fleet.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3. For some days past many excesses have been committed in this capital, at Scutari, and in the quarter of Topkhana. The government, to remedy this evil, has judged it proper to put to death some of the authors of these disorders. The bashaw of Candia hath informed the Porte that a Russian squadron of sixteen sail hath appeared off the said island, and that five ships of this squadron were sailed towards the Morea, and the other Isles of the Archipelago.

An EXERCISE, containing a DIALOGUE and two ODES, performed at the COMMENCEMENT in the COLLEGE of PHILADELPHIA, June 5, 1770.

AMYNTOR.

NO more in Academic forms we great
Your kind indulgent ear. Prepare we now
The wonted strain of joy---But Damon, whence,
That deep-heav'd sigh; that brow o'ercast with care?
Why bends your look in sorrow to the ground,
To damp this festive day?

DAMON.

Alas! my friend;
When DISCORD rears her banner, and the State
Totters beneath her sway; when FREEDOM mourns,
And her fair sister COMMERCE, by her side,
Sits bound in fetters; when untwined lies
The golden cord of mutual Trust and Love
That should unite the Parent and the Child---
Say, can the sympathizing Muse forget
To share her Country's Pangs? Can the delight
In frolic strain, or deck her brow with bays,
When the dark Cypress and the baldf Yew
May best become her state?

AMYNTOR.

In vigorous grief,
Even joy is found, when the sweet Cheerer HORSE
Refuses not to pour her wonted balm
Upon the bleeding heart. What human Power,
Or human scheme, however deep-devised,
Shall stay the mighty purposes of Heaven?
Lo! in the Rolls of PROVIDENCE engrav'd,
I read the great Decree---"The time shall come,
And now begins to dawn, when, rooted strong
In sacred Knowledge and enlightened Zeal,
Fair FREEDOM shall again erect her head,
And widely o'er this western world diffuse
Her empire undisturb'd; while COMMERCE fair
And ARTS and SCIENCE and RELIGION pure
Shall prop her throne---And hark! their warbling voice,
Entraptur'd at the thought, the Muses raise---

AIR.

Freedom, mankind's safest guide!
Here erect thine undisturb'd reign;
Truth and Justice by thy side,
Golden COMMERCE in thy Train!

Empires own thy gentle sway,
They, without thee, drooping, mourn;
Smiling at the orient day,
Haste, fair Freedom, thy return!

DAMON.

Amyntor! thou hast rous'd my inmost powers!
The whole analogy of things confirms
The strain prophetic. For as yonder Sun
Rejoicing Earth, diurnal, rides along
Pompous from East to farthest West; even so
It seems decreed that Empire, Freedom, Arts,
And their resplendent train, should urge their course
Glorious from East to West, and ere the Day
Of Time shall end, in soul-rejoicing tour,
Surround the globe, and every people bless.

THYRSIS.

Yes, Damon! and the bright Historic page
Still more confirms the thought---With Eastern Swains,
Where Innocence and simple Nature join'd
To bless the rural cot, when Time was young,
Fair FREEDOM first upheld her bloodless Reign.
With growing glory, thence the stretched her course
Still westward o'er the Hellespont, Persia, Greece,
Thence o'er the Hellespont, Persia, Greece,
Sublime along, the east a glad'ning ray,
Far to the North, on Scythia's lonely race
And vast Sarmatia. Then ascending bold
The Alpine heights, the bade eternal snow,
And mountains bare, delight the soul even more
Than Arno's teeming vale forsook by her.
Germania then rejoiced beneath her sway,
Reaching, the while, the farthest polar verge
Of wintry Scandinavia's frozen climes.
Then, meditating still a bolder flight,
O'er fair Britannia's isles, and Thule's self,
She urg'd her glorious course; and, ling'ring long,
There on Europa's last, but noblest, sons
She beam'd her noon-tide blaze; and westward still
Across the vast Atlantic shot a ray
To gladden Britain's sons, where'er retir'd
In regions New. And, tho' by clouds obscured,
Yet shall her beams, with renovated strength,
Break forth, and pierce those awful depths of woods,
"Till all America's untutor'd sons,"
Of every language and of every hue,
Rous'd and exalted by her genial warmth,
Enjoy by turns their day of social Bliss.

AMYNTOR.

The flux of Things---the rise and fall of States---
How solemn is the Lecture which they read!
Thro' all the annals of recorded time
Each page declares---"That VICE is SLAVERY'S Night,
"And VIRTUE is bright FREEDOM'S glorious Day!"

DAMON.

Attend, ye patriot throng! ye noble sons
Of Freedom, who, to save your Country's rights,
With rigid self-denial, sacrifice
Your private gain---O! be your worth approv'd!
Attend! be firm! So, in the roll of fame,
When time shall cease, and worlds in ruins lie,
Sav'd from the wreck, your names shall ever live.

AIR.

Time! thy Wheels shall cease to move,
Nature in one ruin end!
But th' archangel from above,
Shall in heavenly pomp descend,
And from the clouds, the roll of fame
Shall snatch, and save each PATRIOT-name.
